My all time goal, even before becoming a professional actress, is becoming a doctor but not any doctor, a bone-marrow-specialist.

I know that to reach this goal, it will take years but I'm shure it will be worth the time. I really want to make this goal, so I'm working towards it right now. A big part in of this career is knowing the bones so I pay special attention in S.H.A.P.E. and Science. Different way to help me reach this goal are, getting good grades all through school, I will have to graduate from ~~the~~ highschool and, go to collage and Med. School.

I also enjoy helping people, and if I can help one person with this job it will be well worth it.

Even though I like helping people, the money that goes with this go job isn't that bad either.

But the biggest reason I want to become a bone-marrow-specialist is because of personal experinces in my life with bone-marrow problems. I want to try to keep families from going through hard times like ~~a lot~~ of a lot of other people have to go through.

I want to find a cure for bone-marrow-cancer. That is why before anything I want to be a Bone-Marrow-Specialist.
